CASCADE, IOWA - November 3, 2026 - Source-linked research edition - Not adopted law

Data center and industrial land-use litigation: 27 case abstracts

Compilation date: November 3, 2026. Underlying case-status research cutoff: October 28, 2026. The November edit adds abstracts and Chicago-style source notes; it does not imply a new court-docket check for every case through November 3. This is a selected national inventory, not an exhaustive PACER or fifty-state audit.

Scope: Local-government zoning, moratoria, property-use and entitlement disputes involving proposed data centers and cryptocurrency-computing facilities. A cryptocurrency mining case is included only as a land-use and noise comparator, not as proof that every data center has the same legal status.

How the abstracts should be read

A settlement is not a contested ruling. A preliminary injunction is temporary. Denial of a preliminary injunction is also not necessarily final resolution. Dismissal and loss on the merits differ. A project under construction is not equivalent to a completed or approved project. The actual court is listed separately from a geographic federal district, which is not a claim that a state proceeding was filed in that federal district.

Cascade jurisdiction: Dubuque and Jones Counties, Iowa, fall geographically within the Northern District of Iowa and the Eighth Circuit. State-court decisions from other states generally do not bind Iowa courts. District-court orders elsewhere in the Eighth Circuit are persuasive at most on analogous federal issues; published Eighth Circuit appellate decisions can bind N.D. Iowa courts on applicable federal law.[28]

Citation method: Superscript Chicago-style numbered endnotes. A case note links directly to available decisions, dockets, government statements, or identified journalism. When underlying court orders were unavailable, the source is labeled secondary and the case remains unverified at the merits level.

A. Developer-favorable settlements or interim relief

1. Related Digital / RD Michigan Property Owner I LLC v. Saline Township (MI)

Abstract. This dispute concerned denial of data-center rezoning and alleged exclusionary zoning. The developer and township reached a consent judgment establishing a negotiated path, not a judicial holding that the township's zoning was unconstitutional. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Oct. 2025 consent judgment after rezoning rejection, and the development status was Construction underway June 2026; not fully built.[1]

Court: Washtenaw County Circuit Court (state). Docket: 2025-001577-CZ. Federal geographic mapping: E.D. Michigan (geographic mapping). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

2. Jones Digital LLC v. Arkansas County (AR)

Abstract. The operator contested local cryptocurrency-mining restrictions, including noise regulation. A preliminary injunction and later consent disposition favored continued operation, but the settlement did not establish a general constitutional right to operate a data center without local standards. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Preliminary injunction; 2024 consent resolution, and the development status was Existing crypto-mining facility resumed operations.[2]

Court: U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Arkansas. Docket: 2:23-cv-00220. Federal geographic mapping: E.D. Arkansas (actual federal venue). Circuit: Eighth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

3. RCM Hill LLC v. Hill County (TX)

Abstract. A developer challenged a county data-center moratorium. The county later rescinded the moratorium and the litigation was settled or dismissed; that negotiated retreat is not a precedential merits invalidation of all moratoria. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was County rescinded moratorium June 2026; settlement/dismissal July, and the development status was Proposed; no completed center verified.[3]

Court: U.S. District Court, Western District of Texas. Docket: 6:26-cv-00340. Federal geographic mapping: W.D. Texas (actual federal venue). Circuit: Fifth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

4. Imperial Valley Computer Manufacturing LLC v. County of Imperial (CA)

Abstract. A California developer attacked the county's initial moratorium measures. A writ required corrective government action and the county repealed the identified measures; the result did not constitute unconditional approval of a finished facility. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Writ against initial 2026 moratorium measures; county repealed them Oct. 6, and the development status was No completed center confirmed.[4]

Court: Imperial County Superior Court (state). Docket: ECU004800. Federal geographic mapping: S.D. California (geographic mapping). Circuit: Ninth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

5. Eco TIP West LLC v. Chatham County (NC)

Abstract. A developer challenged a twelve-month moratorium. A favorable summary-judgment ruling was reported, but the exact scope of final relief and project construction were not established by the sources reviewed. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Developer summary judgment reported Sept. 17, 2026; remaining relief unresolved, and the development status was Proposed; completed facility not verified.[5]

Court: Chatham County Superior Court (state). Docket: 26CV000456-180 (reported). Federal geographic mapping: M.D. North Carolina (geographic mapping). Circuit: Fourth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

6. NSI 6 LLC v. Benton County Commission (MO)

Abstract. The dispute concerned a Missouri county's moratorium affecting a computing facility. A preliminary injunction reportedly restrained enforcement while litigation continued; the order is interim and the merits remain unsettled. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Preliminary injunction against moratorium Oct. 6, 2026; merits pending, and the development status was Site work reported; no completed center verified.[6]

Court: Benton County, Missouri state circuit court. Docket: Docket not independently verified. Federal geographic mapping: W.D. Missouri (geographic mapping). Circuit: Eighth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

B. Pending, mixed, or unclear proceedings

7. NSI, A.1 LLC v. City of Springfield (MO)

Abstract. A developer contested a Missouri city's moratorium. The case was reported as pending, so no final finding that the City's enactment was unlawful was established. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Filed Sept. 17, 2026; pending, and the development status was Proposed; no completed center verified.[7]

Court: Greene County Circuit Court (state). Docket: Docket not independently verified. Federal geographic mapping: W.D. Missouri (geographic mapping). Circuit: Eighth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

8. Lambiaso / TerraWatt challenge to St. Louis Board of Adjustment (MO)

Abstract. A developer-associated challenge concerned land-use approval conditions for the Armory project. A separate community challenge to approval makes the procedural posture especially important; neither action should be treated as final approval. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Filed Sept. 2026; pending, and the development status was Planned Armory data center; not built.[8]

Court: Circuit Court of City of St. Louis (state). Docket: Docket not independently verified. Federal geographic mapping: E.D. Missouri (geographic mapping). Circuit: Eighth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

9. Thor Equities LLC v. City of Urbana (OH)

Abstract. A developer brought a federal case over local data-center controls and related entitlement issues. Settlement discussions were reported but no executed settlement or final judicial disposition was confirmed in the source set. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Filed June 2026; settlement discussions reported Oct. 2026; pending/unverified conclusion, and the development status was Proposed; construction not confirmed.[9]

Court: U.S. District Court, Southern District of Ohio. Docket: 3:26-cv-00196. Federal geographic mapping: S.D. Ohio (actual federal venue). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

10. Wixom Industrial One LLC v. City of Wixom (MI)

Abstract. The federal complaint contests local zoning revisions restricting a proposed data-center use. Filing the complaint does not establish any judicial ruling or a vested right to construction. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Filed Aug. 7, 2026; pending, and the development status was Proposed; not verified built.[10]

Court: U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Michigan. Docket: 2:26-cv-12754. Federal geographic mapping: E.D. Michigan (actual federal venue). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

11. CAL Realty LLC / Raeden Acquisitions LLC v. City of Gibraltar (MI)

Abstract. Developers challenged a one-year municipal development moratorium. Motion-to-dismiss litigation remained at the pleading stage in the latest reviewed material. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Filed Aug. 2026; motion-to-dismiss briefing ongoing Oct. 2026, and the development status was Proposed; not verified built.[11]

Court: U.S. District Court, Eastern District of Michigan. Docket: 2:26-cv-12893. Federal geographic mapping: E.D. Michigan (actual federal venue). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

12. HEXA Builders LLC et al. v. Monroe Township (NJ)

Abstract. The dispute was removed to federal court from state proceedings. Related docket references exist, but consolidation and the final disposition were not verified. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Pending as of Oct. 2026, and the development status was Proposed; not verified built.[12]

Court: U.S. District Court, District of New Jersey (removed from state court). Docket: 1:26-cv-08284; possibly related 1:26-cv-13447. Federal geographic mapping: D. New Jersey (actual federal venue). Circuit: Third. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

13. Kentucky Industrial Alliance LLC v. City of Cave City (KY)

Abstract. A developer contested a moratorium and related annexation activity. Multiple related state proceedings require separate docket review before attributing any outcome to a particular claim. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Pending in 2026; combined case-management reported, and the development status was Proposed; not verified built.[13]

Court: Barren Circuit Court (state). Docket: 26-CI-00445 / 26-CI-00500 (reported related matters). Federal geographic mapping: W.D. Kentucky (geographic mapping). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

14. SDCL Tennessee Propco LLC v. Bradley County (TN)

Abstract. A developer challenged county zoning restrictions, reportedly including large site setbacks. Without a final ruling, this remains evidence of litigation risk rather than proof that the controls are invalid. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Filed Sept. 17, 2026; pending, and the development status was Proposed; not verified built.[14]

Court: Bradley County Chancery Court (state). Docket: Docket not independently verified. Federal geographic mapping: E.D. Tennessee (geographic mapping). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

15. E. Kahn Development Corp. v. Montgomery Township (NJ)

Abstract. The developer reportedly sued over a local data-center ban. The exact disposition and relief remain unverified, making this a monitored dispute rather than precedent. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Filed July 2026; merits status unverified, and the development status was Proposed; no build confirmed.[15]

Court: Somerset County Superior Court (state). Docket: SOM-L-001072-26. Federal geographic mapping: D. New Jersey (geographic mapping). Circuit: Third. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

16. MLP Ventures v. Upper Merion Township (PA)

Abstract. The conflict involved land-use review and proposed data-center operations. Withdrawal of zoning appeals does not necessarily dispose of a separate court proceeding; a docket check is essential. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Sept. 2026 challenges reported; separate zoning appeals withdrawn Oct. 2026, and the development status was Project not confirmed built.[16]

Court: Montgomery County Court of Common Pleas (state). Docket: Docket not independently verified. Federal geographic mapping: E.D. Pennsylvania (geographic mapping). Circuit: Third. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

17. Hanton City Investments LLC / ROK LLC v. Town of Smithfield (RI)

Abstract. Developer-associated actions challenged a municipal ban or application review. The underlying matters are tracked together only provisionally because separate case numbers and dispositions were not confirmed. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Developer litigation over ban / application review reported Sept. 2026, and the development status was Proposed; not verified built.[17]

Court: Rhode Island Superior Court (state). Docket: Two state actions reported; numbers unverified. Federal geographic mapping: D. Rhode Island (geographic mapping). Circuit: First. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

18. West Buckeye Road LP v. City of Phoenix (AZ)

Abstract. The developer challenged Phoenix data-center controls and alleged damages. A mixed motion decision permitted a damages theory to continue while dismissing another claim; a surviving claim is not success on the merits. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Oct. 2026 mixed motion ruling; damages claim survives; other claim dismissed, and the development status was Not verified built.[18]

Court: Maricopa County Superior Court (state). Docket: State-court docket not independently verified. Federal geographic mapping: D. Arizona (geographic mapping). Circuit: Ninth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

19. City of Gallatin v. Gallatin Data Centers LLC (TN)

Abstract. The municipality initiated litigation over land-sale and repurchase rights, and the developer asserted counterclaims. A federal ruling on pleadings favored continuation of certain claims, not a final authorization to develop. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Mar. 2026 developer-favorable denial of city pleading motion; case not finally decided, and the development status was Facility not confirmed built.[19]

Court: U.S. District Court, Middle District of Tennessee. Docket: 3:24-cv-00868. Federal geographic mapping: M.D. Tennessee (actual federal venue). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

20. 1200 Route 22 Land Investors / Land Holdings v. Bridgewater Township (NJ)

Abstract. The developer alleged conflict between a new data-center ordinance and an earlier redevelopment plan. The pleadings were pending and construction was not confirmed. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Filed Oct. 5, 2026; pending, and the development status was Redevelopment site proposed; not built.[20]

Court: Somerset County Superior Court (state). Docket: State-court docket unverified. Federal geographic mapping: D. New Jersey (geographic mapping). Circuit: Third. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

21. Quantum Maryland data-center developer v. Frederick County (MD)

Abstract. A developer reportedly challenged a county moratorium affecting a major land transaction. Without a verified case number or order, the claim and alleged exposure should be treated as reported rather than adjudicated fact. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Developer moratorium suit reported Oct. 8, 2026; pending, and the development status was Not verified built.[21]

Court: Circuit Court for Frederick County (state). Docket: State-court docket unverified. Federal geographic mapping: D. Maryland (geographic mapping). Circuit: Fourth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

22. Silver Fox 606 v. Village of Indiantown (FL)

Abstract. The developer sought declaratory and injunctive relief in a plat/land-use dispute. No merits ruling or completed development was confirmed. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Developer plat/land-use suit reported Oct. 7, 2026; pending, and the development status was Not verified built.[22]

Court: 19th Judicial Circuit Court, Martin County (state). Docket: State-court docket unverified. Federal geographic mapping: S.D. Florida (geographic mapping). Circuit: Eleventh. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

C. Developer-adverse cases

23. NewRays One LLC v. Faulkner County (AR)

Abstract. In contrast to Jones Digital, a federal court denied a crypto-mining operator's preliminary injunction against county noise enforcement. The preliminary ruling addressed likelihood of success and equitable factors under Arkansas/federal law; it did not decide Iowa municipal zoning. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Developer's preliminary injunction motion denied October 6, 2024, with a clarifying amended order entered October 8, 2024. An August 22, 2025 order addressed some issues in a motion to dismiss without fully disposing of it; final disposition after that order was not verified, and the development status was Existing cryptocurrency-mining facility. Do not treat operation as judicial approval of noise levels or other compliance.[23]

Court: U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Arkansas (Central Division). Docket: 4:24-cv-00824-LPR. Federal geographic mapping: E.D. Arkansas (actual federal venue). Circuit: Eighth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

24. State ex rel. Bristolville 25 Developer LLC v. Village of Lordstown (OH)

Abstract. Ohio's Supreme Court rejected the developer's extraordinary-writ request relating to site-plan processing and a moratorium. A writ denial is a developer-adverse result in its procedural context, not a universal rule about data centers. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Developer lost writ action Oct. 20, 2026, and the development status was Proposed; not verified built.[24]

Court: Supreme Court of Ohio (state). Docket: 2025-1497. Federal geographic mapping: N.D. Ohio (geographic mapping). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

25. DCB Nashville LLC / DC BLOX v. Metropolitan Government of Nashville (TN)

Abstract. The original federal complaint was dismissed in October 2026. A later lawsuit should not be treated as active without verified refiling, and the dismissal is not a developer victory. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Original federal complaint dismissed Oct. 6, 2026; later action not verified, and the development status was Not verified built.[25]

Court: U.S. District Court, Middle District of Tennessee. Docket: 3:26-cv-01143. Federal geographic mapping: M.D. Tennessee (actual federal venue). Circuit: Sixth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

26. National Land Developers LLC v. Andover Township (NJ)

Abstract. The developer voluntarily dismissed the local data-center dispute with prejudice. That disposition is not a finding that the municipality's zoning is unconstitutional or that the project may proceed. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Developer voluntarily dismissed with prejudice Oct. 2026, and the development status was No build confirmed.[26]

Court: Sussex County Superior Court (state). Docket: State-court docket unverified. Federal geographic mapping: D. New Jersey (geographic mapping). Circuit: Third. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

D. Iowa municipal-annexation comparator

27. Woodbury County and residents v. City of Salix (IA)

Abstract. This Iowa comparison challenges annexation undertaken for possible data-center development. It is a state-court municipal-boundary dispute, not a developer suit or Northern District of Iowa federal ruling. As recorded in the source review, the reported procedural posture was Annexation litigation reported pending Aug. 2026, and the development status was Proposed; not built.[27]

Court: Iowa state district court (state). Docket: Iowa state court; docket not independently verified. Federal geographic mapping: N.D. Iowa (geographic mapping ONLY). Circuit: Eighth. Precedential status: Actual court and procedural posture control; geographic circuit mapping is informational, not a claim of binding precedent.

Conclusions for Cascade's proposed M-2 ordinance

1. Require evidence and apply uniform standards. An ordinance grounded in Iowa Code §§414.1-414.3 and connected to documented land-use effects is more legally defensible than a personal or company-specific restriction.[29]
2. Use clear numerical terms and established decision processes. Define sound monitoring, electrical load, equipment setbacks, and application criteria. Keep the Board of Adjustment's special-exception and variance authority consistent with §414.12, including its 2025-added practical-difficulties provision.[30]
3. Treat procedural cases as procedural. Consent judgments and early injunctions show litigation and settlement risk, not a categorical prohibition on industrial regulations.
4. Distinguish federal precedent from geography. Jones Digital and NewRays arose in the Eastern District of Arkansas (Eighth Circuit). Their district-court results are not independently binding in the Northern District of Iowa; cases in Missouri state courts are not federal Eighth Circuit decisions.
5. Track unresolved records. Several cases rely on reporting or trackers instead of full state-court dockets. A City Attorney should obtain actual pleadings and final orders before relying on them in a legislative finding or brief.
